MxO FAN SITES

Fan site support has always been a big part of any MMORPG community. THE MATRIX ONLINE was lucky to have several very dedicated fan sites over the years. We'd like to take this opportunity to acknowledge and salute some of those sites. Thank you to everyone who took any part in keeping the fan sites running, whether it was as an administrator, designer, web master, contributor, or member.

Penth anniversary of The Matrix: March 31st, 1999 - March 31st, 2009

Welcome to my attempt at making a centralized web site for MxO live event transcripts. This is a constant work in progress. Just a couple of notes before we begin.

1: This is my first web site, despite the fact that I've been using the net since the mid '90s. Hosting, site design and utilities have been provided by Daniel Robson, as my interest in making this site look nice wasn't very high.

2: Many of the transcripts on this page have been copied by me from other sources. I did this so I could have an archive of them in case the sites I found them at went down permanently (and some did). I mean no harm, and I'm not taking responsibility for the transcripts that are not mine. If you need to contact me about this, send a calm and reasonable email to me.

Special Thanks

- To Romax, for inspiring me to actually make a web site.
- To Paul Chadwick, for making a story that uses the potential that the Matrix franchise has.
- To Aether and the original LET.
- To Rarebit, for not only being a one-man-LET, but for writing the critical missions, creating new characters, making a couple hundred pill icons, fixing the foundation of the SOE Seattle building, protecting us from meteors, etc. Seriously, this guy deserves a big vacation. Or at least some more devs to help him out.

Archival Science was an awesome source for centralized MxO live event information.

THE MATRIX ONLINE STORY

So you made it. You took the red pill, and before long you got yourself lost in that damn rabbit hole. Now, you're in serious need of a history lesson, and you want Super Jesus to fill in the blanks. Fine by me, just remember who's taken the stories here. I call it like I see it, and you'll get no spoonful of sugar from me. This ain't no family site, that's for damn sure, so don't come cryin' to papa if you find somethin' that offends the series. Rightousness ain't a virtue in my book. Those are my terms, take 'em or leave 'em. I suggest you poke around a bit. There's some good intel in these pages, and you're gonna need it. You got something useful to add, send it to me. Otherwise, you've got work to do.

MxO PLAYER GATHERING 2009

From June 25th to June 28th 2009, Sony Online Entertainment held its yearly Fan Faire event in Las Vegas, Nevada. On Friday the 26th, the MxO players that attended Fan Faire were invited to an MxO Player gathering. They met in a conference room with SOE staff that had worked on THE MATRIX ONLINE with development, community relations, and customer service. (Walrus, Greeblen, Raijinn, Virrago, and Moonlite.)

After lunch and some discussion, Greeblen handed out some goodie bags to our MxO friends which included some fun and seemingly random items that referenced THE MATRIX ONLINE and the movies, as well as a custom Thank You postcard (the silly string was just for fun though).

Later, everyone posed for a group photo, which also turned out to be an ambush for Raijinn (he'd left the room for a few moments and a plan was put in place for his return). During the photo shoot, the silly string was deployed and, well, Raijinn got covered in the foul smelling green stuff, but was an excellent sport about it.

At the end of the gathering, the group went to the SOE Green Screen booth in the Crossroads area and posed for another group photo, this time with the postcard image in the background.
